

InChangeE Summer School 2022

Relevance of different life phases for individualisation

20–23 September 2022

Individuals differ. Aristotle made this almost banal statement 2,300 years ago, yet it is more up to date than ever as a research topic. Individual differences do not only exist in humans, but in all organisms. But when and how do they emerge during the lifetime?

The InChangeE Summer School 2022 brings PhD students and postdocs together to address these questions in an interdisciplinary discourse between natural sciences, social sciences and humanities. You will get the chance to explore the relevance of different life phases for individualisation in keynote talks, group sessions and in-depth discussions with peers and invited speakers from various disciplines.
