Global Englishes Language Teaching (GELT) is an inclusive paradigm which accommodates such research trajectories and frameworks as World Englishes (WE), English as a Lingua Franca (ELF), English as an international language (EIL) as well as related fields such as linguistics or multilingualism in the context of teaching and learning English. This symposium provides space for the discussion of current research, opportunities to transfer research into practice as well as an outlook on future perspectives. It is also an invitation to network and explore opportunities for future cooperation.

Keynote Speakers: Dr. Nicola Galloway, University of Glasgow
Prof. Dr. Heath Rose, University of Oxford

Call for papers:
We invite scholars and practitioners working in GELT-related contexts to submit presentation proposals that focus on, among other aspects,
- empirical research on GELT-related classroom practices and the actors involved,
- theoretical contouring of related frameworks and the conceptual implications that come with GE-informed language education,
- implications for curriculum design,
- insights on innovative classroom practice.

Presentations will have a duration of 20 min. We welcome abstracts of no more than 250 words specifying the title of the presentation, author(s) (name, affiliation, e-mail address), research design (research focus, research question(s), goal(s), methodology, instruments), research results (if applicable), and a list of references (the list of references does not count towards the word limit). Please also include a short bio of no more than 70 words.

Please submit your abstract to julia.reckermann@uni-muenster.de and ricardo.roemhild@uni-muenster.de by March 24th, 2023. Notification of acceptance is expected by March 31st, 2023.

Participation without presentation:
We would also like to cordially invite those who are interested in the topic but do not wish to present a project at the time being. Please officially register via the website specified above.
