2014-2015 KUNCI Cultural Studies Center, Yogyakarta, Indonesia

The Ethnolab (Indonesian and English): the four week teaching collaboration aimed at promoting and supporting arts-based research on political issues in economically marginalized neighbourhoods. Initiated in Yogyakarta, it comprised of a series of conceptual and methodological conversations across disciplines to promote skills in ethnographic fieldwork and collaborative knowledge production between young researchers, artists, activists, and community members who participated in the research process (<http://ethnolab.kunci.or.id>).

I have also taught at (selected)
