

WITH

Lea Hensch
Rashof Salih
Sara Martínez
and the [anthro]metronom
team

09 / 04 / 2024
2 - 4 PM
+ a wind-down social
until 6 pm

salon [anthro]metronom #1

memories & commemoration practices

Presenting the blog for psychological anthropology
[anthro]metronom through a discussion with its authors.

More info:

www.anthrometronom.com

Art in background:

© Pablo Dohms

Address: Room STU 102 (2.4),

Department of Social and Cultural Anthropology,

University of Münster,

Stuttstrasse 21, 48149 Münster

Dear all,

We are delighted to announce the upcoming event "Salon [anthro]metronom #1: Memories & Commemoration Practices."

Through the lens of psychological anthropology, this student-led event will explore the current work of young scholars critically examining topics such as the politics of memory and the role of artifacts and affects in memory practices. The Salon [anthro]metronom #1 will feature a panel discussion with authors who have published essays on the [anthro]metronom blog. Considering the diversity of contributions, we will also delve into methodological approaches such as autoethnographic writing and anthropological storytelling.

As this is the first event organised by the young editorial team of [anthro]metronom, we are eager to introduce the [anthro]metronom platform and its work to a wider audience, while also exploring opportunities for collaboration. We warmly invite you to join us at the event!

Warm regards,
The [anthro]metronom Team

[anthro]metronom is a platform where students, scholars, and activists are invited to submit essays and multimodal works related to current or historical discussions at the intersections of anthropology, psychology, and psychiatry. Originally organised by graduate students at the Institute of Social and Cultural Anthropology at Freie Universität Berlin and supervised by Thomas Stodulka, [anthro]metronom has evolved into a growing international team of young scholars in the field of psychological anthropology.

Learn more about us at: <https://www.anthrometronom.com/>

WITH

Lea Hensch
Rashof Salih
Sara Martínez
and the [anthro]metronom
team

09 / 04 / 2024
2 - 4 PM
+ a wind-down social
until 6 pm

salon [anthro]metronom #1

memories & commemoration practices

Presenting the blog for psychological anthropology
[anthro]metronom through a discussion with its authors.

More info:
www.anthrometronom.com
Art in background:
© Pablo Dohms

Address: Room STU 102 (2.4),
Department of Social and Cultural Anthropology,
University of Münster,
Stuttstrasse 21, 48149 Münster

Dear all,

We are delighted to announce the upcoming event "Salon [anthro]metronom #1: Memories & Commemoration Practices."

Through the lens of psychological anthropology, this student-led event will explore the current work of young scholars critically examining topics such as the politics of memory and the role of artifacts and affects in memory practices. The Salon [anthro]metronom #1 will feature a panel discussion with authors who have published essays on the [anthro]metronom blog. Considering the diversity of contributions, we will also delve into methodological approaches such as autoethnographic writing and anthropological storytelling.

As this is the first event organised by the young editorial team of [anthro]metronom, we are eager to introduce the [anthro]metronom platform and its work to a wider audience, while also exploring opportunities for collaboration. We warmly invite you to join us at the event!

Warm regards,
The [anthro]metronom Team

[anthro]metronom is a platform where students, scholars, and activists are invited to submit essays and multimodal works related to current or historical discussions at the intersections of anthropology, psychology, and psychiatry. Originally organised by graduate students at the Institute of Social and Cultural Anthropology at Freie Universität Berlin and supervised by Thomas Stodulka, [anthro]metronom has evolved into a growing international team of young scholars in the field of psychological anthropology.

Learn more about us at: <https://www.anthrometronom.com/>