

Effects of peatland restoration on composition and biomineralization of dissolved organic carbon (DOC)

The aim will be to determine the variability of DOC concentrations, composition and biomineralization in relation to contrasting vegetation in peatland sites undergoing restoration. The work will combine field sampling and laboratory incubations and optical measurements to characterize DOC.

Contact: cristian.estop@wwu.de